Fortress of Health

Our Inner Shield

Every day, your body is exposed to a range of environmental influences that may not always be visible. The strength of your natural defenses plays a big role in how energized, healthy, and resilient you feel, especially during times of stress.*

The Invisible World Around Us

Even air that looks clean is full of life. One cubic meter can hold anywhere from hundreds to millions of living microorganisms.

- In unfiltered indoor spaces, levels can go above 3,000 CFU per cubic meter
- Outdoors in spring, up to 1,100 CFU per cubic meter. In winter, around 65 CFU per cubic meter
- In dusty, crowded spaces, levels can reach tens of thousands of CFU per cubic meter

These microorganisms include bacteria, viruses, fungal spores, microscopic organisms, along with their metabolic byproducts.

*CFU = Colony Forming Unit, a measure of viable microbe concentration.

Resistance, Your Body's Natural Armor

Resistance refers to your body's ability to respond to everyday environmental influences. The stronger it is, the better your body can maintain balance and resilience when faced with these challenges.*

A Multi Layered Defense System

Skin is your first barrier, helping protect the body from environmental exposures*

Mucous membranes produce protective fluids and enzymes that support the body's natural defense functions*

Gut microbiota help maintain a balanced intestinal environment and support immune balance*

Stomach acid plays a role in the body's natural digestive environment*

Filter organs like the liver, kidneys, and lymphatic system support the body's natural elimination processes*
